Violent and Property Crimes Decrease in 2018, Police Say

by James Giese

This information was included in the Public Safety section of the City of Greenbelt Proposed Budget for Fiscal Year 2020.

In 2018 serious, or Part I, crime in Greenbelt decreased 9 percent, down from 920 reported incidents to 840. Serious crimes include murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft.

Violent Crime

Violent crimes of murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault involve the element of personal confrontation between the perpetrator and the victim; consequently, they are considered more serious crimes than property crimes because of their very nature. The total number of violent crime was 117 incidents, which comprised 14 percent of all crime. This is a decrease of 2 percent from the previous year. The majority of violent crime, 73 percent (85 incidents), occurred in Greenbelt West, 16 percent

City Council Reviews CARES: Space, Budget, Achievements

by James Giese

CARES is a youth and family counseling service provided by the city. Many of its professional counselors are volunteers. Another part of CARES is Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) which provides help to seniors to enable them to stay in place as they age.

Space Needs

The most serious problem faced by Greenbelt CARES is lack of space. CARES Director Liz Park told the Greenbelt City Council at a budget review work-session on April 3 that a previously authorized half-time volunteer coordinator had not been hired because of lack of physical space to put the person. CARES case files are jammed in a room not much bigger than a closet, she said. That problem will be lessened by the conversion of paper files to electronic files. State regulations require that they be kept for five years or, for youths, until the client turns 21.

Assistant City Manager David Moran told council that the space problem was being worked on and that it was a part of the Capital Projects budgeting. Possible space being considered for expansion of city office needs is the ground level of the Community Center, once the school cafeteria, and most recently used for an adult day care program that proved financially unsuccessful.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts objected to the Community Center being used for offices. He felt the city had a commitment to use the space for expansion of community use and Waynette Trammell, a Greenbelt resident, knows first-hand about the difficulties that come with taking care of someone with a mental disability. “The biggest frustration you have is agitation because the person taking care of the impaired can’t see what’s going on in their mind. You also experience resistance. When they get familiar with their caregiver, they are skilled in trying to get their mission done by any means necessary,” said Trammell.

As a caregiver to her mother who has sundown syndrome (a set of Alzheimer’s-related symptoms), Trammell can recall various moments her behavior drastically changed as soon as the sun went down. “It’s like she’s a different person. She pays no attention to what she’s wearing, the weather outside or who is in front of her. Whatever is on her mind has completely taken over.”

Trammell believes early memories from childhood and adulthood can be the emotional key that jump-starts her imagination. “My mother once walked from Greenbelt to Rhode Island Ave., in northeast D.C. with a cane and footies on. As a child she used to walk about 13 miles to and from school. She doesn’t feel pain; it’s as if something that caused her fear she never dealt with is brought up as she begins to wander.”

Trammell is not the only caregiver experiencing the hardships that come with caring for someone with a mental disability. Greenbelt has had an increase in wandering citizens who have autism, developmental disabilities, Alzheimer’s disease and other forms of cognitive impairment.

In 2018, five people wandered away from their homes between April 6 and September 9. That is five times the number of wandering residents in 2017, according

Letters to the Editor

More on Police

I was intrigued by the response of Karen McFarland to Martha Heil’s letter concerning the composition of the Greenbelt Police Department. For the most part those of us who live in the Center of Greenbelt and many who live in Greenbelt East have had positive experiences with the department.

However, there is definitely a problem when the vast majority of traffic citations are given out to people of color, African Americans and Spanish speaking residents. There is also a problem when a parent whose son is wrongly accused of a crime is allegedly told that she can expect certain harassment by police because she lives in a predominantly Black area, Greenbelt West and Franklin Park.

Caucasians have always seen police in a positive light, while many people of color do not. It is more than just having qualified officers, it is also having respectful and professional officers who approach each individual as a human being first and foremost. Many people of color are very wary of Caucasian police officers because they fear for their lives. That is not the experience of the vast majority of white people. I think that Ms. Heil was trying to address that reality and other inequities.

I suggest that a racial equity framework be considered when hiring new police officers so that there is an ethnic balance which reflects the population being served. Such a framework will ensure that not just the police department, but all Greenbelt departments and department heads reflect the citizens who reside in and pay taxes to this great city.

It is hoped that Chief Bowers in his new strategic plan considers these ideas.

Lois Rosado, Greenbelt Racial Equity Alliance

Well Deserved

I was very pleased to see the story and picture of members of Greenbelt’s Recreation Department at the Maryland Recreation and Parks Association (MRPA) conference (April 18 issue). The awards presented to current and past department employees are well deserved. Greenbelt is incredibly fortunate to have such dedicated and hard-working professionals providing us with a wide array of recreation, art and outdoor activities and leisure services. Remember when you are enjoying all these amenities, you have recreation professionals to thank.

Amazing Grace After a 47-year Wait

The live recording of Aretha Franklin’s 1972 Amazing Grace album in Watts, Los Angeles, finally sees the light of day. With the New Bethel Baptist Church choir, this behind-the-scenes documentary concert takes place over two nights, offering up music that constantly straddles the genres of gospel and rhythm-and-blues. This transcendental performance is extraordinary and there is no other word to use. Essential viewing for those who revere this woman’s music. See Aretha in all her glory.

Community Events

City Nature Challenge From April 26 to 29

Citizen science comes to Greenbelt with the City Nature Challenge, a project of the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County and the California Academy of Sciences. From April 26 to 29, anyone in the DC metro area is invited to photograph local wildlife both animals and plants, note the location and upload their photos to iNaturalist, a global database. Cities across the world compete to see which city can share the most observations. The photos will help scientists understand urban biodiversity. For more information, visit citynaturechallenge.org.

Thoughtful Discussion At Community Center

Where does “private” end and “public” begin, when it comes to expectations of privacy? Can an activity become public if it’s done at an unobstructed window of a home where any passerby can see? If smart phones can see and hear everything that happens in their vicinity, is any place truly private?

The MakerSpace discussion group that meets at the Community Center will look into these issues on Tuesday, April 30, at 7 p.m. Those wishing to share their thoughts on the topic should check the schedule on the white board for the room number.

Star Party Saturday

The Astronomical Society of Greenbelt will host a star party, free and open to the public, on Saturday evening, April 27 starting around 9 p.m. and continuing for two hours at the City Observatory at Northway Fields. Attendees can expect to see galaxies, many of which are now high in the sky, through the observatory telescope and astronomical camera. As always, visitors are welcome to set up their own telescopes on the hill.

Attendees are asked to park in the ballfield lot, not up on the hill, unless bringing a telescope. The star party will be canceled without notice if it is hopelessly cloudy.

Toastmasters Open House

Interested in public speaking or leadership development? Greenbelt Toastmasters will have an Open House on Wednesday, May 1 at 7 p.m. in the basement of the Greenbelt Community Church located at 1 Hillside Road. Light refreshments will be served. Visitors are welcome.

Homeschoolers Hold Monthly Meet-ups

Families with babies, preschoolers and school-aged children (through 12th grade) are invited to meet on the first Tuesday of each month, 3:15 to 4 p.m. at the Greenbelt Library to discuss summer and fall homeschooling and summer plans.

The group will meet in the children’s section so kids may play or read nearby.

Bring ideas and enthusiasm. New families are welcome. The group aims to create ways to better support one another.

Note: This is not a library-sponsored event.

Obituaries

Gail Sue Phillips

Gail Phillips

Gail Sue Phillips died on April 19, 2019. She was born on March 24, 1949, to Maurice and Faye Phillips, in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. Gail was the first of two daughters and she highly valued her family. In fact, she recently took her first trip in a number of years to celebrate her seventieth birthday in Arizona with her sister Nancy Phillips-Lisook and her husband. She was truly happy to be with family and then back in Greenbelt, she shared some of her experiences with her many friends.

Gail graduated from high school and from community college in Bethlehem, PA, majoring in business. In her late twenties she moved to Maryland and lived in Greenbelt for nearly 40 years. She worked for most of that time at Goddard, retiring about eight years ago. One of her goals in recent years was to become Bat Mitzvahed, a goal she achieved five years ago.

In Greenbelt, Gail enjoyed good friends, walking buddies, Scrabble, plays, reading, swimming, community classes, and volunteering. She volunteered at the Greenbelt News Review as a proofreader, among many other projects.

My husband and I are saddened by the loss of our beloved sister, but our grief is lessened by the outpouring of affection from those who have known Gail.

CROP's Annual Hunger Walk

Several Greenbelt community groups, area churches and possibly other religious groups will participate in the annual CROP Hunger Walk on Sunday afternoon, May 5 at 1:30 p.m. at Lake Artemesia Park in College Park. This year is the 50th anniversary of CROP Walks, which occur at various locations throughout the country. Church World Service, the founder of CROP Walks, came into existence after World War II to help displaced persons. For more information, visit cwsglobal.org.

CROP walkers will meet in the parking lot of the Linson Pool and Wells Ice Rink on Campus Drive and will walk around Lake Artemesia. CROP walkers must have at least one sponsor. Donations will go to Help by Phone of Prince George's County and to Church World Service for development projects in 35 poor nations and the U.S.

Greenbelt area churches participating in this year's walk include Greenbelt Community Church, Berwyn Presbyterian, Glenn Dale United Methodist, Greenbelt Baptist and Holy Cross Lutheran. The two participating secular groups are the Golden Age Club of Greenbelt and the Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt Democratic Club. All are welcome to walk and earn (any size donation) for the hungry. For more information, contact Suzanne Hubbard, coordinator, at 301-332-7410.

County HR Commission Condemns Act of Hate

The Prince George's County Human Relations Commission is devastated at yet another horrific attack on people of faith. On Sunday in Sri Lanka, men, women, boys and girls were killed as they prayed, as they dined together, and as they enjoyed family time. These simple, basic acts – the acts of loving human existence – are the right of all people no matter how they choose to worship or whom they claim as family, and we mourn the loss of so many bright lives. We stand strongly on the side of equity and harmony and reaffirm the place in Prince George's County – and in our world – for people of all faiths and backgrounds to live in solidarity and peace with each other. Our diversity is our strength, and we are proud of the rich fabric of people who make Prince George's County such a vibrant and wonderful place to live and to work.

For those looking to come together in conversation and understanding, we are hosting a conversation for the community titled, Building Justice In Our Communities – Uniting Against Hate, on May 1 from 6:30 to 8:30 at the Spauldings Branch Library in District Heights.

This free event is limited to those who register in advance at unitingagainsthate.eventbrite.com.

The Honey Trap Opens at GAC

The Greenbelt Arts Center presents the world premiere of The Honey Trap, a comedy written and directed by local playwright Michael Stepawony. The play opens this weekend and continues through May 12, with shows on Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m.

The Honey Trap takes place in a Las Vegas hotel room on the Fourth of July, 1957, as people gather to watch an atomic bomb test. The cast of characters include a showgirl, her boyfriend, a Colonel and his secretary. As the festivities begin, an FBI agent arrives, followed by the Colonel's wife. The complicated plot includes Russian spies, ghosts, and an atomic bomb blast all woven together in a door-slamming comedy.

Stepawony grew up in Prince George's County and graduated from NYU's School of the Arts. He wrote several plays before The Honey Trap, including two musicals for young audiences that were performed throughout the County parks. He is influenced by Tennessee Williams and August Wilson, and says that he "prefers a play with a single setting and complex dialog." The Honey Trap takes place entirely within a hotel room, but there are times when all six characters speak at once. His latest play, "The Olive Fig Tree," was given a staged reading at the Kennedy Center "Page to Stage" festival.

The saying The Honey Trap is a Cold War era term. It describes the KGB tactic of training voluptuous female spies to attain 'pillow talk' from unsuspecting Americans.

GHI Seeking Volunteers For Storm Water Study

Greenbelt Homes' (GHI) Stormwater Management Task Force (SWMTF) is beginning a thorough study of stormwater management issues in GHI and is seeking volunteers to help with research.

One of the task force members is currently doing research in conjunction with the Maryland State Climatologist's Office, a service of the University of Maryland (UMD) Department of Atmospheric and Oceanographic Science, and the UMD Earth System Science Interdisciplinary Center. The goal of this research project is to map non-tidal flood risks in Maryland and rate them from highest to lowest flood risk impact.

The first step in the project is to launch a pilot study to map and rate non-tidal flood risks, with GHI planned as the pilot site. This will be useful to the SWMTF in developing a master GHI stormwater management plan and in writing funding proposals to address high-risk areas.

Non-tidal bodies of water are those that drain upland areas and are not influenced by coastal and tidal processes, including rivers, streams, creeks and other small flowing waters. Flooding can also occur in localized low spots, even if the area is not adjacent to a body of water.

The SWMTF is recruiting GHI members and other volunteers to assist with any one of three activities, which can be done in the volunteers' spare time on a flexible schedule.

The first activity is a literature search. For this, the task force is recruiting volunteers with a background as research librarians who have access to a research library and the ability to obtain and send electronic copies of full PDFs of the research papers identified as useful. Previous experience in scientific library research is preferred.

The second activity is to search for funding opportunities and to develop a list of organizations and contact persons who are working on flood risk mapping in non-tidal regions. Previous experience in grant writing is a plus, but not required.

The third activity is a search of previously completed non-tidal flood risk management modeling. For this activity, the task force is recruiting volunteers with experience working with geospatial models, including ESRI's ArcGIS.

Attendance at SWMTF meetings for anyone volunteering to assist with this project is entirely optional, but welcomed. The task force meets on the first Thursday of each month at 10 a.m. in the Board Room of the GHI Administration Building.

Anyone interested in volunteering for any of these three activities, or anyone with questions, can contact the SWMTF Chair, Jim Cohen, at jimcohen@umd.edu.

Latin teacher Matthew Moore said, “This year’s leadership did a spectacular job getting all the teams organized, trained-up and focused. Amelia Komisar-Bury was the co-consul so she was the general responsible for our success and the really enjoyable trip we had this year.”

Komisar-Bury stated that the club “spent over a month of Wednesdays creating art pieces, setting up campaigns, and going over logistical strategy for the convention. On the Certamen (certamen is Latin for competition) side, we just kept up our weekly practice to make sure that our teams were ready.” She added, “Latin has easily doubled my vocabulary. In addition, I have greater knowledge of biological and legal terms than the majority of my peers due to my experience with classical roots.”

Certamen is a trivia competition that includes the Latin language, Greek and Roman mythology, classical literature in Latin, and Roman history. According to junior Mika Kretzmann-Clough, questions might include “how did this historic figure die, grammatical construction, you might have to correctly phrase the answer in Latin, general information about a work, where or when was this author born or who was the author who covered the lives of bees” (the answer is Virgil).

Moore described the event as a “full weekend of classical culture to celebrate it all and have fun with it.” Nineteen ERHS students traveled to the event, which featured a number of different types of activities including field games such as capture the Helen, golden apples race, ultimate discus, gladiatorial combat and building a catapult to hit a cyclops. Many ERHS students did well in academic testing, including three first places. Creative arts include making dioramas out of Peeps, or doing dramatic interpretation where students are judged at how well they can recite a specific story in Latin (this year’s story was about a werewolf from Petronius’ Satyricon).

ERHS first year student Rebecca Gardner enjoyed the weekend, stating, “My favorite moment was right after the Certamen finals when we realized we got first place. We spent weeks working on various projects like the Peeps diorama and the catapult. We also built the weapons for the gladiator tournament and practiced with them. Latin makes my academic experience a lot better because I know I can go to people in the JCL if I ever need help with work or advice on what classes to take in the future.” Another first year student, Ryley Komisar-Bury, enjoyed the dramatic interpretation, “when you memorize a passage in Latin and recite it dramatically. It was really exciting. I was also kind of nervous, though, because it was a new experience. It motivates me to actually study things and advance my work ethic, and learn things outside of school, especially in Certamen and JCL. I also get really excited when it helps me with finding Latin derivatives in English class.”

The novice (first year Latin) team was led by Andrea Tucker-Fontaine, with Rebecca Gardner, Ryley Komisar-Bury and Anika Olson. The intermediate (second year) team captain was Edward Wisniewski, with Michael Deras

Gomez and Minh Nguyen; a second intermediate team was led by Rosario Navarro, with Irene Moy, Kelly Han and Nathalie Trouba. The advanced (third year and advance placement) team captain was Mika Kretzmann-Clough, with Mary Chavez and Christopher Wakhanala. Kretzmann-Clough is the newly elected state president of the Maryland Junior Classical League, with Trouba as vice president and Deras Gomez as parliamentarian for the five-member state board.

Moore reported that JCL is second only to the Boy Scouts in size for youth organizations around the world, “You go to a convention and you want to keep going, you see people who value and get excited by the same things. Everybody has a place there. If you have an obsessive interest in the minutiae of republican Rome, a talent for art, you’re ridiculously organized – this is a home for people in public school so they have a place to go to and belong. This is why I want to do things like JCL and why I like Latin, because it gives everyone a place to be.”

He added that ERHS Principal Reginald McNeill is so supportive of Latin that other teachers in the region are jealous. Besides supporting JCL and Latin activities, the school paid for 103 students to take the Latin exam, so that 50 earned commendations, including one with a perfect score, a feat managed by only 0.8 percent of students. The Prince George’s County World Languages Department has awarded the seal of biliteracy to five ERHS students with language proficiency standards of 4 and above.

ERHS hosts a competition once a year, but students go to compete at other locations about once a month in nearby locations in Maryland and Virginia.

General Government Budget Proposed for Fiscal Year 2020

by Diane Oberg

The General Government account in City Manager Nicole Ard’s proposed budget for the Fiscal Year 2020 (FY20) provides, essentially, for the administrative needs and overall management of city government.

The $3.73 million budget represents 12 percent of total city budget. Three sub-accounts are responsible for over 60 percent of the general government budget: Finance with 22.6 percent, Administration with 21.1 percent and Information Technology (IT) with 20.3 percent. The remaining sub-accounts in decreasing order of funding are Community Promotion, Human Resources, Legal Counsel, City Council, Economic Development, Municipal Building, Public Officers Association and Elections.

The proposed budget for General Government is up nine percent over last year’s budget (13.4 percent over estimated FY19 expenditures.) No new positions are requested. The Greenbelt City Council and city management met on March 27 to review this budget.

Staff is proposing several changes that council appeared comfortable with. All employees will be required to have their paychecks direct-deposited into a bank account and an electronic timesheet system will be implemented.

The city is also close to rolling out financial software (e-gov) that will permit remote payments for city services. IT Director Dale Worley reported that the new document management system has been implemented in Human Resources. Next up is the city manager’s office.

City Council

This budget proposes expenditures of $148,200 compared to $140,800 in the adopted budget for the current fiscal year, with most of the increase attributed to employee benefits.

Administration

The Administration account funds the city manager’s office with proposed expenditures of $787,600. Management objectives include updating the Greenbelt Road Corridor Improvement study and continuing to oppose the maglev train and the widening of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Capital Beltway.

Economic Development

This appears as a separate account for the first time. It has one employee and proposed expenditures of $125,900. The management objectives include developing and implementing a comprehensive strategic plan to meet the city’s economic development goals, developing marketing and business assistance tools and identifying and providing technical assistance to businesses looking to start or expand in Greenbelt.

In addition, it funds $25,000 in the Special Projects Fund to create a revolving loan account available to Greenbelt businesses with the goal of attracting new business and improving the viability of existing businesses.

Human Resources

This is another new account starting with the FY20 budget, having been split off from the Finance budget with proposed expenditures of $344,000. The management objectives include forming an employee group to update performance appraisals and continuing the scanning of employee files into the document management system.

Finance

Expenditures in this account, proposed at $844,200, are down from the current year due to the creation of the Human Resources account. Aside from the technical initiatives mentioned above, a major management objective is succession management in preparation for the retirement of city Treasurer Jeff Williams.

Resident Molly Lester asked council to consider changing its policy of paying departing employees for any unused sick leave. She doubted that this policy is comparable to what city residents get. She suggested that this change could be limited to new employees.

Ard noted that it is important to look at the whole package of benefits, not just leave policies.

IT Department

As the name suggests, this department is responsible for providing IT technology and communications to all departments in the city. In addition to maintaining and replenishing the computers and other information systems (such as phones) the department keeps abreast of current technology and develops security measures to protect the city’s information systems.

Proposed expenditures total $758,300, up from $710,000 in the adopted budget for the current fiscal year. Its management objectives include expanding the city’s document management system, beginning systematic camera upgrades, updating the IT Strategic Plan, and participating in cable television negotiations.

Worley is also working with Public Information and Communications Coordinator Beverly Palau to develop a request for proposals for a feasibility study for a city broadband system. His department is also working with Greenbelt Recreation regarding the computer lab at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. He suggested that the city consider replacing the computers in the FY21 budget.

Palau, who earlier mentioned that this meeting was the first to be broadcast live from the Community Center, asked what the city would do regarding signers for the Wednesday worksessions if that is to be the city’s policy. She said that Granicus, the vendor that provides the software for the existing cable broadcasts and streaming, is currently comparing the costs for signers compared to the cost of captioning the broadcast. Worley reported that in addition to the Community Center the city should be able to broadcast live from the Springhill Lake Recreation Center.

Public Information

In addition to conducting negotiations with the city’s cable providers, the Public Information and Community Promotion area funds the city’s communications with city residents through social media, the city’s municipal access television channels, news articles and press releases and the city’s website. Proposed expenditures total $349,000 that is completely offset by the $390,000 that the city receives from cable franchise fees from Verizon and Comcast.

Management objectives for FY20 include working with the Economic Development Coordinator to improve the business area of the website and promote businesses, increasing the number and types of informational newsletters sent out using GovDelivery, streamlining the cablecasting and streaming of off-site city council meetings and increasing social media use. GovDelivery is the system allowing residents to subscribe to various newsletters and other information.

Local Author’s “Encyclopedic” New Book Rocks and Rolls

by Jim Link

It’s no surprise to his many friends to hear Mark Opsasnick called a Greenbelt legend. Insatiably curious, Opsasnick has written books on a variety of topics, from local rock and roll to horror legends. This past January, Opsasnick released his magnum opus, Rock the Potomac: Popular Music and Early-Era Rock and Roll in the Washington, D.C. Area.

Born and bred in Greenbelt, Opsasnick attended Eleanor Roosevelt High School and then graduated from Maryland University in 1984 with a B.A. in urban studies. He recently retired from the Montgomery County Department of Health and Human Services after 28 years as a case worker.

His most recent book boasts over 800 pages of history and encyclopedic knowledge. It’s a labor of love, a browser’s delight, a rock fan’s addiction. He includes a few Greenbelt musicians who made a big splash over the years, including Rick Ransom of Donnie and the Diablos, Terry Gleason, Joe Martone, Richard Tipton and Jim Colby. Ransom and the Diablos frequently played at the Greenbelt Youth Center, the American Legion Post 136, the Greenbelt Armory and St. Hugh’s Catholic Teen Club. Ransom, as the astute reader will recall, was Greenbelt’s Outstanding Citizen of the Year in 2016.

Other rockin’ Greenbelt biggies include Ron Bushy, the drummer for Iron Butterfly, whose 17-minute drum solo in In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida (1968) is arguably rock’s most famous drum solo. Bushy grew up in the 7 Court of Southway. Seth Justman, keyboardist for the J. Geils Band, grew up at 3 Court Crescent Road.

Opsasnick serves up plenty of fascinating legends, lore and anecdotes about local rockers like Danny Gatton, Jorma Kaukonen (Jefferson Airplane, Hot Tuna), Root Boy Slim, Catfish Hodge, Link Wray and Eva Cassidy, among myriad others.

Rock the Potomac “is a literary project that dominated my life for over a decade,” said Opsasnick. “It’s a relief to be finished. In my humble opinion, this is a unique book; nobody else has done our local rock history on such a comprehensive scale.”

When asked whether it was time for him to rest and relax, he replied, “Not really. As a writer I always have ideas. Once it’s in your blood you can’t get rid of it. I’m always going to be writing about music, particularly topics of local music,” he said.

Rock the Potomac is available at Amazon, Barnes and Noble and local outlets like Books-a-Million. He ended our interview with a tease: “Stay tuned for a book release party at the New Deal Café, coming soon.”

City Council Cleans Trail For Earth Day Celebration

by Ashley Edwards

Earth Day is celebrated annually with the goal of demonstrating support for environmental stewardship through a host of activities and events. On April 13, the City of Greenbelt actively participated in the Earth Day festivities with a trash cleanup along the Indian Creek trail. The event welcomed 33 volunteers from Earth Squad, the Association of Government Accountants (AGA) and Eleanor Roosevelt High School students as well as partner organizations Alice Ferguson Foundation, CHEARS and CCRIC. This event was also a part of Alice Ferguson’s 31st annual Potomac Cleanup that is hosting 300 cleanup events this month.

Volunteers; Mayor Emmett Jordan; and Councilmembers Judith Davis, Silke Pope, Colin Byrd and Ed Putens showed up to a table full of fresh bagels and coffee. After Jordan presented the Earth Day proclamation, volunteers posed for pictures and eagerly took to the trail to clean up trash that had been deposited there by people and stormwater. The portion of the Indian Creek that runs by the Indian Creek Trail is a braided stream system that floods during times of heavy rain. This flooding deposits trash onto the surrounding forest floor. The volunteers found no shortage of trash and recycling items along the trail and in the surrounding forest. At the end of the day, 144 pounds of trash and 209 pounds of recycling was removed.

Ultimately, this cleanup was just one of Greenbelt’s many events that promote environmental stewardship throughout the year. Upcoming opportunities can be found on the city’s website <https://www.greenbeltmd.gov/government/departments-con-t/public-works/green-volunteer-opportunities>.

Contribute Time and Scraps To Springhill Lake Compost

by Hally Ahearn

The Hots community composting group invites Franklin Park and Greenbelt Station neighbors to share in bringing food scraps to contribute to a community compost pile.

The group’s name, The Hots, comes from the natural process called hot composting, where browns (carbon) and greens (nitrogen) are mixed with water, which causes the mixture to heat up quickly. The hot-composting process breaks down the brown wood chips provided by Public Works and the green food scraps that families provide to make compost rapidly.

Currently, about 25 individuals or families recycle their food scraps and enjoy creating and using compost to grow food and flowers. Joining involves completing an online application and attending a training session held at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center.

The Hots will host a training session on Saturday, April 27 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and another one from 3:30 to 5 p.m. To join, fill out the form at tinyurl.com/GBCappl.

At the training, members learn how to drop off food scraps and then add in wood chips. That is the magic formula that creates good compost. Members also learn more about the hot-composting process and how to use compost to grow their outdoor gardens, balcony gardens and houseplants. Everyone learns how contributing food scraps benefits the environment and helps stave off climate change.

Individuals or families who join are encouraged to volunteer too, to help with the work and to participate in the activities and learning experiences that make this a community project. Work days are held on Saturday mornings. The outdoor work involves some shoveling and sometimes some sifting; others are needed to water and help out in other ways. All abilities are welcome. Kids are encouraged to participate too. The group has kid-sized tools for them to use.

Normally, food that goes in the garbage goes to the landfill, where it creates methane, among the worst of the greenhouse gases. Food scraps that are returned to the earth as compost help to save the planet and to grow food, flowers and houseplants right near home.

Anyone who is interested and wants to know more may contact the group at GreenbeltNeighborhoodCompost@gmail.com.

that the city should seek space elsewhere.

Councilmember Edward Putens advocated having employees do more office work at home. He said his government agency found employees to be more productive working in a home environment instead of in an office.

Budget

The proposed Fiscal Year 2020 budget for CARES is $806,300, which is $23,000 less than the budget for the current year, but $31,000 more than estimated expenses for the current year. Of the budgeted amount, $751,900 is for personnel expenses for the full-time equivalent of 7.1 employees. Anticipated state and county grants which the city expects to receive next year for the program total $95,000 with the balance of funds needed coming out of city tax revenues.

The proposed budget indicates that CARES will provide counselling to 150 clients during the year, of which half will be under 18 years of age. The service also expects to provide GED training to 40 clients and do group counselling sessions with 100 teens and 50 adults. Another 150 persons will be contacted by crisis intervention services and there are expected to be 50 youth drug and alcohol assessments. This averages to a budgeted cost of about $1,500 per client but does not take into consideration other services CARES may provide. The program also expects to have 12 volunteer interns serving a combined 50 hours a week and five interns in the vocational and educational programs serving 12 hours a week.

The council did not discuss or question any budget expense proposal.

Achievements

The budget lists several pages of accomplishments and activities for the year. Some of note are: graduate interns conducted two anger management seminars; preparation courses and financial literacy classes were offered to GED students; coordinated tutoring services for youth were provided at a Saturday morning “drop-in” program and an after-school tutoring program at Springhill Lake Recreation Center as well as English as a Second Language classes for adults; participated in the 1st Look Volunteer Fair and Stampfest at the University of Maryland in order to educate college students about service-learning opportunities and encourage experiential learning with volunteer programs; and recruited and trained new tutors from the University of Maryland for the drop-in tutoring program (tutors from the local community also participated).

Crisis intervention counselors provided immediate counseling and follow-up contacts to over 200 individuals and families facing issues such as victim of crime, suicide, death of family member and community crisis. These counselors also participated in Fall Fest and the Celebration of Spring events offering participants information on CARES and area resources. The eviction relief volunteer worked with over 40 individuals facing eviction and provided information and referral resources, as well as monetary assistance for some from the Emergency Relief Fund.

Staff also utilized the Dispute Resolution and Managing Anger program for an anger management group where participants learn specific skills to improve social skills and emotion regulation. The juvenile delinquency prevention counselor utilized the Active Parenting for Teens program. The director and clinical supervisor utilized the Adolescent Community Reinforcement Approach program so that adolescents learn skills to support sobriety. The director and clinical supervisor were trained in the Safe Dates curriculum, which is designed to teach teens about domestic violence and how to identify and develop healthy relationships.

GAIL

This program is under the umbrella of CARES. Christal Batey, who attended the council meeting, is the community resource advocate for this program that provides information and support services to seniors and persons with disabilities as well as their families to help them remain in their homes.

The proposed budget is $337,400, an increase of $2,000 over the current year budget but $14,500 more than estimated expenses for this year. Of the total budget, $326,300 is for personnel expenses for the 3.5 full-time equivalent employees.

Providing 103 hours of service a week, 34 volunteers are expected to aide 60 senior and 50 non-senior clients during the year. Not included are participants in events such as produce/nutrition events.

City staff expect GAIL to provide assistance to 280 existing clients and 90 new ones in addition to providing a number of outreach and group presentation events. GAIL also puts out information through newspaper columns, flyers and brochures to new participants.

Some of the accomplishments and activities of GAIL listed in the budget document are: provided a monthly caregivers support group; offered a memory support group and expanded the program to offer a memory cafe program that allows participants to receive services weekly; participated in the Partners for Wellness program at the Capital Area Food Bank, successfully distributed 97,750 pounds of food in Greenbelt; and hosted the 10th Annual Senior Law Day where Greenbelt residents received free legal assistance for their advanced directives and living wills.

Other accomplishments were: coordinated Breakfast with Santa in partnership with Combined Properties to provide breakfast and gifts for 50 needy children, as well as gifts for their families; coordinated a food drive to provide Thanksgiving baskets for 21 Greenbelt families; expanded services to Greenbelt West residents through the addition of the bilingual community outreach coordinator; provided a Diaper Baby Mobile Wellness program that provided nursing intern visits to 32 families and 40 babies; with a grant from the DC Diaper Bank launched the new Greenbelt Nursery Project offering new and expecting mothers the opportunity to attend a day-long workshop and receive a nursery bundle that included a stroller, pack and play, baby carrier, car seat, diaper bag and diapers that is expected to serve over 50 residents; and partnered with the Prince George’s County Sheriff’s Department to provide holiday baskets and with Combined Properties to provide $25 gift cards for Thanksgiving dinners for Green Ridge House residents.

Since 2005, the city has been receiving annual grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for providing a service coordinator at Green Ridge House. Moneys transferred from Green Ridge House operations supplement the grant funds, making the program free of city tax support. The proposed budget of $81,500 includes $76,600 for personnel expenses. The council did not discuss this budget at its worksession but may do so at a worksession on Green Ridge House finances.

Nature in Greenbelt

This eastern garter snake posing in a local yard is readily identifiable by the yellowish stripes running down its dark back and, particularly when it has just lunched on a salamander or frog, a distinctive checkerboard pattern on its sides. Non-venomous but likely to get angry if bothered, it can grow to 26 inches long and is one of the most abundant snake species found in Maryland.

Anonymous Disposal Of Prescription Meds

The Greenbelt Police Department, in conjunction with the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), is participating in a free anonymous, no-questions-asked prescription drug takeback on Saturday, April 27 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. There are two locations: the Springhill Lake Recreation Center parking lot on Cherrywood Lane in a pop-up tent and the Greenbelt Police Department parking lot on Crescent Road in a pop-up tent. Drivers can hand in medicine without exiting the vehicle. This event allows the public a chance to rid their homes of potentially dangerous expired, unused and unwanted prescription drugs. Only pills and patches will be accepted; no liquids, needles or other sharps.

According to the DEA, unused and outdated medicines kept in the home are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse and abuse. They are found to be the cause of a high number of accidental poisonings and overdoses and a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family, friends and home medicine cabinets. The usual methods of disposal of these medicines, flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash, pose potential safety and health hazards.

For more information about the disposal of prescription drugs, call George Mathews, Greenbelt Police public information liaison at 240-508-0238 or visit DEAdiversion.usdoj.gov.

to the Greenbelt Police Department.

Fortunately for Trammell and other Greenbelt residents, the police department, Greenbelt Assistance in Living Program (GAIL) and the city administration have made a combined effort and have established the Critically Missing Person Project (CMP), a system for dealing with people who are potential wanderers. The goal is to provide residents the tools to prevent wandering as well as an effective plan in case mentally impaired residents do run away. Registering for the Greenbelt Alert System allows residents to receive emails, texts alerts and phone calls telling you if a Greenbelt resident is missing, with a picture and detailed information on what they look like in order to bring them home. Caregivers can sign up a person who is mentally impaired by completing a registration form for the Greenbelt Police with basic information about the mentally impaired resident and a photo.

The police can put this information on file and distribute it much faster to relevant agencies when required. "Information is everything. The quicker we locate people, the quicker we can get to a happier ending," said George Mathews, public information liaison.

According to the Alzheimer's Association, 6 out of 10 people with Alzheimer's or dementia will wander in their lifetime. And every 65 seconds, someone in the United States develops the disease. "They have a basic disconnect from the outside world. It's kind of heartbreaking when that kind of thing happens," said Mathews. The program is intended to help all vulnerable residents, not just senior citizens. "If a person is cognitively impaired they go in that category," said Christal Batey, resource advocate of GAIL. "It allows us to be on top of it rather than be in crisis mode. It is very important to be proactive and register in advance."

In addition, the program offers tips for caretakers to consider when trying to prevent wandering residents, such as using door alarms to track when a resident is leaving the house.

With three years as a caregiver, Trammell has witnessed the lasting effects of taking care of someone who can't properly differentiate their own ideas from reality. "You can't do anything about it other than try to convince them it doesn't exist. It is very difficult because our minds are not built to change someone else's mind that already has something it in they feel is real. It is so unexpected," said Trammell.

However, projects such as CMP make Trammell appreciative of the steps Greenbelt has taken to help the mentally impaired. She also wants to see more changes like that implemented in the state of Maryland. "We are definitely behind the eight ball in terms of Maryland for facilities that help with dementia. But, I'm elated about the city of Greenbelt having this project for support for us caregivers."

Property Crime
Property crimes comprise the majority of crime with 723 incidents, over six times greater than the number of violent crimes. As a group, property crimes accounted for 86 percent of the total Greenbelt crime in 2018. The majority of property crimes, 55 percent (401), occurred in Greenbelt West, 31 percent (226) in Greenbelt East, and the remaining 13 percent (96) in Historic Greenbelt.

Geography of Crime
Geographically, the majority of crime incidents, 58 percent (486), occurred in Greenbelt West, 29 percent (245) in Greenbelt East and 13 percent (109) in Historic Greenbelt. While the city experienced an overall crime decrease of 9 percent, this decrease was not uniform. Greenbelt West experienced a crime decrease of 1 percent, while Greenbelt East and Historic Greenbelt experienced an increase of 14 percent and 23 percent respectively.

Performance Measures
The department responded to 24,006 calls for service, a decrease of 6 percent from 2017. Adult arrests decreased 18 percent from 348 to 284 arrests, while juvenile arrests decreased 16 percent from 56 to 47 arrests.

Officers made 2,297 traffic stops, a 32 percent decrease from 2017. Officers issued 1,834 citations (17 percent decrease) and wrote a combined 2,691 warnings and equipment repair orders (31 percent decrease). Commensurate with the traffic stops were 65 driving under the influence arrests (31 percent decrease) and 212 other traffic related arrests (13 percent decrease). Officers were out of their cruisers patrolling neighborhoods and businesses on 3,852 occasions, a 12 percent increase. The number of property damage traffic crashes increased 3 percent from 1,063 to 1,099; personal injury crashes decreased 3 percent from 120 to 116. There were two fatal crashes in the city. One resulted in the death of a pedestrian on the ramp from southbound Kenilworth Avenue to Greenbelt Road. The other involved the death of a motorist and was investigated by the Prince George's County Police as the crash involved a county owned vehicle.

Automated Traffic Enforcement
The Red Light Camera Program generated 5,903 violations, a 16 percent increase from 2017. There had been a decrease in 2017, a result of several enforcement sites being damaged by vehicle collisions and inoperative during repairs. The Speed Camera Program recorded 15,084 infractions, a 9 percent increase from 2017.

Clearance Rate
The clearance rate for cases investigated by Greenbelt officers was 24 percent. A crime is cleared when police have identified the offender, have evidence to charge and actually take the offender into custody. Solutions to crimes are also recorded in exceptional circumstances where some element beyond police control precludes formal charges against the offender, such as the victim's refusal to prosecute, or local prosecution is declined because the subject is being prosecuted elsewhere for a crime committed in that jurisdiction. The arrest of one person can clear several crimes or several persons may be arrested in the process of clearing one crime.

A fox kit was stuck in the fence by the playground at the top of Ridge Road on Wednesday evening, April 17. The kit was rescued by Officer Travis Wagner of the Greenbelt Police.

Golden Agers Gather in April To Celebrate Annual Luncheon

by Mary Moien

T.S. Eliot called April the cruelest month. And who looks forward to April 15? But for the Greenbelt Golden Age Club members, April is one of the best months of the year. It is the month of their Annual Luncheon.

On April 17 at the College Park Holiday Inn, about 80 members celebrated another great year. In addition, some councilmembers and recreation department staff attended, as well as City Manager Nicole Ard.

Thanks go out to Joan Baker who organized the luncheon. Long-time member Bunny Fitzgerald, who recently moved to be closer to her daughter, returned to Greenbelt for the party and spoke about the history of the club. It is said the Greenbelt Golden Age Club is the oldest senior's club in the county.

Members look forward to the 50-50 drawing at this luncheon, and this year Bob Baker and Wayne Williams were the winners.

Stephanie Dailey and Company provided rousing entertainment. Wayne Wilentz sang and accompanied Dailey on keyboard. Dailey wowed the group with her powerful vocal renditions of both old and new Broadway hits. Dailey had several costume changes that kept the audience abuzz wondering how she would appear next. Changes included a jazz outfit, a Flamenco-style outfit and a Glinda the Good Witch costume complete with crown and wand.

Guests sang along with several songs, ending the show with a rousing Somewhere Over the Rainbow.

Long-time member Bunny Fitzgerald (left) returns to Greenbelt for the event and addresses the group. Next to her is Club President, Marti Galvin, who also spoke.

Irma Butcher and Nancy McAllister enjoy the luncheon.

Maria Snoddy, Kathy Reynolds and Rosalie Thomas attend the luncheon.
